

RELEASE OF COPYRIGHT

Intel Corporation

(Copyright Holder)

hereby provides non-exclusive license to its copyright concerning

Serial ATA 1.0a specification

(Article)

to reproduce, in whole or in part, and distribute only in the following standards project and resulting completed text

1532D AT Attachment with Packet Interface -7 (ATA/ATAPI-7)

(Designation and Title of Proposed Standard)

This release is made to permit the promulgation of the above standard as an American National Standard and/or International Standard and covers no other use of the above mentioned copyright.

ANSI or any agent authorized by ANSI will place notification of copyright on all copies to protect the copyright of Intel Corporation.

(copyright holder)

(Signature of Authorized Representative within ANSI)

Monica M. Vago

(Signature of ANSI's Authorized Agent within ITI)

[Handwritten Signature]

(Signature of Copyright Holder)

1-27-03

(Date)

cc: American National Standards Institute

Serial ATA II Specification Promoters

January 10, 2003

TO: John Lohmeyer, Chair INCITS T10 Technical Committee

RE: ACCESS TO DRAFT SERIAL ATA SPECIFICATIONS

The undersigned are the principal developers and promoters of certain draft, final and updated Serial ATA II specifications ("Courtesy Specifications"), and owners of the copyright therein (the "Promoters").

The International Committee for Information Technology Standards ("INCITS") through its T10 Committee ("T10 Committee") is engaged in the development of a Serial Attached SCSI Standard ("T10 Standard").

In the interest of facilitating compatibility with the T10 Standard, the Promoters hereby grant INCITS the right to refer to and utilize the Courtesy Specifications, in whole or in part, in conjunction with the development by the T10 Committee of the T10 Specifications. In addition, each Promoter agrees not to assert a claim of copyright infringement against INCITS, the T10 Committee, or the members of the T10 Committee with respect to any reproduction, distribution, display, modification, creation of derivative works or publication of the Courtesy Specifications in conjunction with any development, adoption or promotion of the T10 Standard. The foregoing grant of rights is conditioned upon the understanding that no intellectual property right or license whatsoever is provided by the Promoters to the INCITS, the T10 Committee or the members of the T10 Committee beyond the rights specifically provided under this paragraph. In particular, nothing in this paragraph shall subject any Promoter to any separate or additional intellectual property or licensing requirement of INCITS or the T10 Committee. Subject to acceptance below of the terms of this letter by the T10 Committee (on its own behalf and under the authority of INCITS), the Promoters agree that each Promoter may disclose the Courtesy Specifications to the T10 Committee without any obligation of confidentiality.

With the signature of its duly authorized representative on the space provided below, each party confirms its acceptance of the terms of this letter as of the date set forth above.

The Promoters:

INTEL CORPORATION

By
Its Director

SEAGATE TECHNOLOGY

By _____
Its _____

APT TECHNOLOGIES, INC.

By _____
Its _____

DELL COMPUTER CORPORATION

By _____
Its _____

MAXTOR CORPORATION

By _____
Its _____

Information Technology
Industry Council, INCITS Secretariat

By _____
Its _____

Serial ATA II Specification Promoters

January 10, 2003

TO: John Lohmeyer, Chair INCITS T10 Technical Committee

RE: ACCESS TO DRAFT SERIAL ATA SPECIFICATIONS

The undersigned are the principal developers and promoters of certain draft, final and updated Serial ATA II specifications ("Courtesy Specifications"), and owners of the copyright therein (the "Promoters").

The International Committee for Information Technology Standards ("INCITS") through its T10 Committee ("T10 Committee") is engaged in the development of a Serial Attached SCSI Standard ("T10 Standard").

In the interest of facilitating compatibility with the T10 Standard, the Promoters hereby grant INCITS the right to refer to and utilize the Courtesy Specifications, in whole or in part, in conjunction with the development by the T10 Committee of the T10 Specifications. In addition, each Promoter agrees not to assert a claim of copyright infringement against INCITS, the T10 Committee, or the members of the T10 Committee with respect to any reproduction, distribution, display, modification, creation of derivative works or publication of the Courtesy Specifications in conjunction with any development, adoption or promotion of the T10 Standard. The foregoing grant of rights is conditioned upon the understanding that no intellectual property right or license whatsoever is provided by the Promoters to the INCITS, the T10 Committee or the members of the T10 Committee beyond the rights specifically provided under this paragraph. In particular, nothing in this paragraph shall subject any Promoter to any separate or additional intellectual property or licensing requirement of INCITS or the T10 Committee. Subject to acceptance below of the terms of this letter by the T10 Committee (on its own behalf and under the authority of INCITS), the Promoters agree that each Promoter may disclose the Courtesy Specifications to the T10 Committee without any obligation of confidentiality.

With the signature of its duly authorized representative on the space provided below, each party confirms its acceptance of the terms of this letter as of the date set forth above.

The Promoters:

INTEL CORPORATION

By _____

Its _____

APT TECHNOLOGIES, INC.

By _____

Its _____

DELL COMPUTER CORPORATION

By _____

Its _____

MAXTOR CORPORATION

By _____

Its _____

SEAGATE TECHNOLOGY

By _____

Its _____

Information Technology
Industry Council, INCITS
Secretariat

By _____

Its PRESIDENT

1/10/03